

P.S. - Physicists have been very busy but mentally tired. - E. M. M. notice streets & landmarks - 'Lille', it is dangerous to be absent minded crossing the road as the traffic here is simply awful. The heavy two stored steam trams & innumerable motor cars keep one always in the grip.

Paris strikes me as a big place very crowded & restless - except in the Champs Elysees quarter one noticeable feature of the metropolis is the meeting of the flowers everywhere.
Stalls & shops & women & men hawking like the valley fruit & vegetable at every 'place' or square. If I had have had no sensation as in Mexico when recounting perhaps I have worn them out other too I have been living at rather a high pressure

26 Rue de Turin

Thursday. 1. pm
My dear Isaac & Mary where to begin
- start at random. I am living between at my place, here I have a nice little room with small balcony looking on to the street with shops opposite & a good door with me I have been in the Rue Chate. (v. near - but looks it are well & it is a good day home hide I had dejeuner here - not so bad this is I could in lunch the meal. I had bread & jam & black coffee & am sure you think it was meal at 7. but find it fast me to do so much getting about - as instinctively as does he between 8 & 12. This morning Edith, who she is to meet me in the Parc Marceau & Valpurg believe this place there was a war I did not feel inclined - waiting for a treat started off by myself in the other direction - visited the Dame - & traveled about the Latin Quarter for an hour.

It is certainly the most interesting of districts, no part of Paris - the Latin is a beautiful quarter, very crowded. The Champ Elysees is spacious - gorgeous - airy
- altogether luxurious & far à fait different. I could do justice to the Dame & my head was stupid & my eyes tired & I could not look up etc. - but have the paper - the sun has come out & it is a beautiful time I shall make tea in the apartment which has been "perfect goodness & such beautiful. I take it in the solar smaller table for breakfast with it - & even have last night very tired had two cups of tea which which helped me up but not really 'hundred sleep'. I walked & rode the Latin quarter boulevard the main streets & crémiers for some chocolate & drink - the were some & curious shops & book stores & drug cafés - but no crémiers - so I can do without what I could do for. It is much simpler & yet abundant than in London & all the train termini are distinctly placarded with their destinations when the know, & of the termini do as it is easy to live easy - though I have a deep in observation & very keen.

was twid I didn't stay, when the lax, but came back here - then found myself to better to stay quiet & went a walk thru about 5. When I dressed for dinner & started again in pouring rain. My dinner she had a wood fire & we asked up the two ladies at our table - are a semi-french person - large - original & nice, the other an old American - (very nice in an
- versatile & full of American vitality) who is studying under Marcel who is a prima donna. She refused via pathetic courage the friends' advice as she treats her voice as a music. He cherished child.

I left & I came down & I came home along the Champs, & see looking wonderful with its innumerable lights - so many coming home as it is difficult to see the names of the street at night - the omnibus men either cannot or will not keep quiet. It is very surly. I am sure we find a pleasant work force who directs gas - very kind - but my French is so bad - it increases to understand or make one's self understood.
This afternoon I shall take in easy - I am going to the Rue Chapt perhaps this dinner thing. Ella will wonder where I am as I promised to turn up for a few days. The people here are a second rate as the food & four Germans (women) and we friends. There is however a Mexican who speaks English and several very spoken to a vulgar French Madame who is kind but greasy.

We have a lovely reception and like being free and alone and quite contented with my room. As Sunday however I have to turn out - after which - unless I have a good reason - send letters to the Rue Châteaubriant.
I am writing you a letter please mail it for me.
Daisy says when I shall be back. Sometime next week probably. V. G. R. M.

with not much space for such. I found a D.A. somewhere. Need of someone to look after me. No delay I am not free to enter into her in fact I have ^{had} other things to think of beside my point of view.
Said to her about the way of my letters and also the furniture that I have seen reading and under the - in about 1000 when we went off shopping. I am to begin at the Rue Chateaubriant. After which she was expected to the Crown.
(Faubert's house) where I went after for the 5th of the little necessaries for the occasion flowers - cakes - etc - we arranged the room - (one lived in the bedroom here - there is a very charming one -) and I

P. S. Physicae, I am well - mental still liv'd - but if I worked a few my nerves under control my - a - my - mental - being well I have done it - & hope it is well. I can't transfer my thought to England.
This thing is left behind with any sense of reality - & perhaps it is better so. but it makes me seem v. g. egotistic - which I'm not really. - It's a queer mysterious mind the y mine - & claims are being made upon it at the moment which I find it difficult to meet.

Love to this - who understand thank & upright. REM.
