PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, Little Free Libraries are free book exchanges where anyone may take a book or return a book to share with others; no rules, no late fees and everyone can take part; and

WHEREAS, Little Free Libraries aren't just about books; they are about connecting with our neighbors and community through a common love of literature; and

WHEREAS, Village of Williamsville resident Aveleen Etu, age 6, is the steward of the newest Little Free Library in the Village; and

WHEREAS, the idea that a book could be "always a gift, never for sale" resonated with Aveleen and, coupled with her love of books, she was inspired to ask if her family could install a Little Free Library on their lawn at 91 Monroe Drive; and

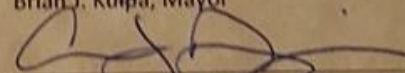

WHEREAS, Aveleen envisioned her library differently because she was frustrated that other Little Free Libraries in our village were stocked with content aimed mainly at adults; and

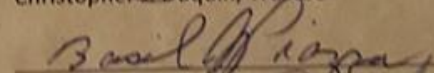

WHEREAS, Aveleen intends for her library to be filled with literature for children as well as their parents, with its own Facebook page (<https://www.facebook.com/MonroeDrLittleFreeLibrary>), where news, featured titles or opportunities to participate will be posted.

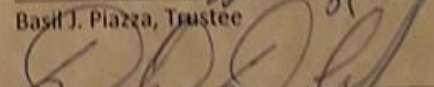

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that Aveleen Etu is hereby awarded this Proclamation in grateful appreciation of her generosity of spirit for offering the families of the Village of Williamsville a Little Free Library, in the hopes that good books and good reading will forever reign supreme upon the land.

Village Board gives proclamation, holds hearings

by ANNA WALTERS
Reporter

During Monday's meeting of the Village Board, Aveleen Etu received a proclamation from the village for her children's books. The library is located at 91 Monroe Drive in Williamsville. Aveleen had noticed that many of the area's free libraries had wanted books that were not for children.

Riverfront Renaissance

The Architecture

An aerial photograph of a city, likely New York City, showing a dense urban landscape with various skyscrapers and buildings. A large, semi-transparent circular overlay is centered in the image. The top half of the circle shows a bright blue sky with white clouds, while the bottom half is a solid black area containing white text. The background image is in grayscale, except for the circular overlay which is in color.

Connecting the past, present & future

"...Buffalonians have long lived under an amazing sense of inferiority. They are grimly realistic about their city and more likely to gripe about its shortcomings or fancied faults than ignore them and shout its good points."

-Lloyd S. Graham, Author, ca. 1949

"The city has shed its ugly duckling image to emerge a vibrant urban hub busily reinventing itself."
