UB to hold 'Third World' activity week

BUFFALO — Activities aiming toward "a better awareness of the Third World in transition, the factors that influence it and the resultant impact globally," will be presented at the State University at Buffalo, Nov. 17-21.

Sponsored by a number of UB undergraduate and graduate student organizations, the week will feature lectures, panel discussions and several plays.

Dr. Eqbal Ahmed, of the Institute for Policy Studies in Washington, will open the week with an inaugural lecture in the Norton Union Fillmore Room at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 17.

Panel discussions and lectures throughout the week will address such topics as Southern Africa, the Middle East, Puerto Rican independence, the Argentine anti-imperialist movement and Southeast Asia.

Nov. 19 a panel discussion on "Third World Women" will be held at 2 p.m. in Room 231 Norton Union.

Other highlights of the week include the production of "Fanshen," a play describing "how the lives of the peasant masses turned over with the Chinese Revolution," and "Tania," a play dealing with

"Cuba's struggle for social transition." //
