

SALAMANCA, N. Y.
REPUBLICAN-PRESS
D. 4,000

OCT 3 1 1969

Black Students Union at UB Give Free Meals to Children

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — said another result of the pro-gram was "the growth of valuable relationships between young children and students. Members of the Black Students Union at the State University at Buffalo are providing a free breakfast each day to about 130 schoolchildren at an East Side community center. "... I think it helps any young child to have an older friend to listen to his problems and to give him advice," he said.

The program is financed through a $3,500 grant from the University's Student Association, but the funds have dwindled to $1,500 and community response to replenish it has been slow.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Karene Asbury, 21, a senior, said, "We're going to keep this going through sheer determination; we'll find the funds some way."

The children, who range from nursery school through sixth-grade level, find a hearty meal awaiting them. A typical menu includes fruit juice, scrambled eggs, bacon, grits, toast and jelly and milk.

Mrs. Asbury said the students planned to expand the program to a second location in January and perhaps set up consumer-education courses for ghetto residents.

Charles Rasheim, 19, a freshman majoring in black studies,

AUBURN, N. Y.
CITIZEN-ADVERTISER
(SYRACUSE MARKET AREA)
D. 17,000

OCT 3 1 1969

Black students give children free breakfast

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — Members of the Black Students Union at the State University Buffalo are providing a free breakfast each day to about 130 schoolchildren at an East Side community center.

The program is financed through a $3,500 grant from the University's Student Association, but the funds have dwindled to $1,500 and community response to replenish it has been slow.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Karene Asbury, 21, a senior, said, "We're going to keep this going through sheer determination; we'll find the funds some way."

The children, who range from nursery school through sixth-grade level, find a hearty meal awaiting them. A typical menu includes fruit juice, scrambled eggs, bacon, grits, toast and jelly and milk.

Mrs. Asbury said the students planned to expand the program to a second location in January and perhaps set up consumer-education courses for ghetto residents.

Charles Rasheim, 19, a freshman majoring in black studies, said another result of the program was "the growth of valuable relationships between young children and students."